FutureHealth and Insurance For Students to Combine Forces

FutureHealth has announced that it has entered into an agreement with Insurance For Students, located in Delray Beach, Florida, to combine their expertise as one company. They have developed and will be distributing the Next Generation of Student Insurance Products and Services.

Pat White, President, and founder of Insurance For Students, has been designing, marketing, and administering comprehensive student accident and health plans for colleges and universities for over forty years.

Kevin Saremi, President, and founder of FutureHealth, has been providing online health education programs that address mental health and other health related issues within the student market. Prior to starting FutureHealth, Kevin founded Consolidated Health Plans (now Wellfleet), a Third-Party Administrator for student health insurance products for over twenty years before selling the company to Berkshire Hathaway.

Our announcement represents a change in what colleges and universities should come to expect from traditional broker and/or consulting services. "The opportunity to enhance our portfolio of products and services will provide our clients with benefits not traditionally associated with broker services," says Pat. "Through Pat's extensive broker background, and our proprietary platform of mental health and wellness programs, we are providing benefits that one would not typically expect from their insurance company," says Kevin. Both Pat and Kevin are excited to bring the Next Generation of Student Health Insurance Products to the marketplace.
